

ASSOCIATION RECOGNISES DISTINGUISHED MEMBERS

IMMEDIATE RELEASE

19 SEPTEMBER 2025

The Aerosol Association of Australia has honoured five individuals for their contribution to the Australian aerosol industry.

Announcing the recipients at the Association's Annual Meeting on 18 September, President David Cowper observed that all recipients had displayed an exceptional energy and commitment to the Association and had significantly advanced its endeavours to promote a safe and sustainable industry. Their contribution had been demonstrated in a variety of ways, ranging from support for the Association's popular training workshops to service on specialist working groups and Standards Committees and involvement in the day-to-day management of the Association's affairs.

Based on nominations from the Association's membership, recipients for 2025 are John Drury, formerly of Pax Australia; Tony Kennedy, formerly of Precision Valve Australia; Robert Layet, formerly of Ensign Laboratories; John Lawrence, formerly of Aerosol Supplies Australia; and Lindsay Showyin, formerly of Reckitt, and, more recently, Frentaupe.

Whilst some like Robert Layet - who participated in the inaugural meeting of the Association in March 1964 - have now retired from the industry, others remain active in the Association and industry, such as Lindsay Showyin, who in 2026 will celebrate 50 years' service on the Association's Executive Committee.
